

UPPER CANADA EXHIBITION.

Toronto, Sept. 28.
There is bustle and activity. The evening train comes in a load of visitors and the leading avenues from the country throng with foreign wags. The road to the Fair has lately undergone improvement—having been graded and planed. A line of omnibuses has been put on the route from the city to the grounds. Distance about two miles, and travel there will be easy half hour on the North-West railway, so that the locomotive facilities are good. The Crystal Palace is built on a plan somewhat similar to your own. The Population Building, about as large, and in a more magnificent appearance. The galleries and body of the building are densely filled in every part, and no Canadian can contemplate the fair without admiration. The weather is very cool, but the atmosphere is still, and the air is clear. The Palace is everything that is good in architecture. The exhibition is now all their places allotted to them, but they are busy displaying their goods.

The manufacturers of Kingston are well represented, and upon a closer examination, I dare say I shall find them up to the mark. In other branches I shall pay attention to what is done, and I am sure we shall shape more to our exhibition.

The Western end of the body of the Palace is set apart for Horticultural productions—the Eastern to Manufacturers. The centre of the building is a fine fountain, and immediately opposite is a dais for the reception of His Excellency the Governor General and other distinguished personages. In the gallery, immediately north of the dais are seats for the Metropolitan Choral Society, which will take parts in the grand musical performances.

The gallery of the Palace is occupied largely by exhibitors in arts, paintings in oil, &c., as well as some of the finer kinds of furniture, and many articles in paper, crystal, glass, &c., of all kinds of specimens, which will gladden the eye.

The grounds have been planted with evergreen trees, and present a very fine appearance. Some work is still to be done at building. I noticed one being put up this afternoon.

The display of cattle, horses and sheep, will be unusually great. An examination of horses by the judges took place this afternoon in the ring, and although a spectra for but a short time, I shall say they are very superior.

The entries for cattle, the number are larger than ever before, making the fair larger, and more attractive.

I fear the weather is going to prove unfavorable. We have a north wind during the last two days, and I expect it will be still, and should be very bad to-morrow or the day after.

Lord Napiers idea was to have a morrow to take part in the inauguration ceremous, will not, I am informed, be held.

The announcement will be after the expectations of some. His Lordship and the queening ceremonies will be short of much of their interest by his non-attendance.

The correspondence tables which we give below are extracted from the Colonist:

The display of these animals equals in number that of last year. The number of heavy draught stallions is greater than the number shown last year, and some of them are of the finest kind. In the matched carriage horses, the number shown in the table is all the same. The following table exhibits the entries of horses for the years 1857 and 1858 respectively:

1857. 1858.

Horses and Mares 10 8

Agricultural Stallions 38 11

Heavy Draught 14 34

This shows a decrease in the number this year.

HOOFES OF YOUNG HORSES.

We have recently an instance of the ill effects resulting from the neglect of the hoofs.

On a recent evening a riding master, who had, in his play, stepped upon some hard substance, and broke off the front part of the hoof to the quick. The accident was attended with such a degree of swelling, that the poor fellow being unable to put his foot to the ground. The master's work would have saved the animal much pain, and the owner might have had the benefit of two months' growth, instead of having to wait for three periods.

But the occasional occurrence of a part of the hoof is a tribe which, combined with other mischiefs resulting from a the same—What the toe is too long, the straiton the fetlock joint is greatly increased, and perhaps the most serious ligament of the foot, the suspensory ligament of the fetlock joint.

Young horses frequently have wind-galls, and other diseases of sprain before they are put to work, and in ninety-nine out of a hundred cases, the swelling and shortening of the toe has been neglected. The great gravel and stone load and hard roads of the north, will wear fast enough, as Nature evidently intended they should; if however, they are kept on smooth turf, their feet must be kept short by artificial means.—Ohio Times.

TREES AROUND BARNYARDS.

Much attention has been paid in your valuable paper lately to the management and cultivation of fruit trees. The subject is one of importance, as well as of more attention among farmers than it generally receives. Now, Moses Editors, I am willing to do what I can to call more attention to this subject, and to call your attention to the fact, that a few dollars might be profitably invested by every farmer who has a barnyard; it is this, to set out a many apple or other fruit trees around the barn.

The trees so planted will throw out their roots under the barn yard, where they will find an abundance of nourishment, which has soaked downward from the surface of the yard, and will be available in any other way. In consequence of their proximity to the yard and barn, they will need any manuring or further attention, save to protect them from cattle, who will eat out of them, unless they will soon do and come to no bearing.

The fruit from trees so planted in large and well developed, and they almost always hang full. One of my neighbors has a few apple trees, on one side of his barn; he has two trees of the same kind, one in his barn yard, and the other some distance off; the one near it produces apples twice the size and more than four times the quantity of the other. My neighbor's trees are all good, and I am sure, that all trees I have seen, a number of them are about eight feet in circumference, at a distance of six feet from the ground, with a distance of six feet apart, through the heads, and a good growth of fruit.

It is a great advantage to a yard to have trees around it, especially in winter, as they do much towards breaking the cold winds, and preventing much suffering among the cattle. Those that who have fed disposed will try not to fall as they have done, but will be satisfied, and an additional attraction be given to the old homestead.—Parish Register.

FATTENING TURKEYS.—The elementary properties of charcoal are very great; indeed, it has been asserted that domestic flocks may be fattened on it without any other food, and that too in a shorter time, than on any other. I have, however, had an experiment made to test the value of the article, four turkeys were taken and confined in a pen, and fed on meal, boiled potatoes, and oats. Four others of the same breed were also confined at the same time, in an other pen, and fed only on the coarsest meal, with a pint of raw fine pulverized charcoal mixed with their potatoes and meal; they had also a plentiful supply of broken charcoal on the ground. The eight were killed on the same day, and there was a difference of one and a half pounds each in favor of the fowls which were fed on the charcoal.

HARVEST TURKEYS.—Turnips, sown broadcast, too thick to grow, may be thinned with the harrow, after they are up, enough to allow them to grow, and then remain untouched by the harrow tool. In fact, it is a pretty good way to put them in rows as though planted with a drill. It would be a good idea to do this, and, however, it is not a bad plan to have them take a rapid start, so that the plants take a rapid start, and grow much better than they would otherwise. It is not a bad plan to treat corn in the same way; and we certainly have seen winter wheat highly benefited by a thorough harrowing in the spring.

THE TWO VILLAGES.

Miscellaneous.

A CARDINALS' LARK.

A singular adventure befall an illustrious man of the Papal Court during the recent high ecclesiastical demonstration at Baltimore. The distinguished individual was introduced to a convert in that town, prior to his departure for the following morning, and gave him a few words
before his departure by train for Dublin.
But they are earlier birds, in Italy, than the west of this Shamrock, for when the Monsignor presented himself at five o'clock in the morning, he was welcomed by a host of cardinals, who had gathered in the church of St. Peter's, to witness the departure of the Pope. The monsignor had been received with black their boots, &c. And Sharpe's ventilators, which are to be used to the ears as soon as the meeting is over, will allow the dust to rise and cover the tainted atmosphere and keep it fresh and pure.

One word about these ambiulators, and we have done. Their principle is, perhaps Rattan, by which the air is impeded by being brought in contact with the skin.

But in the adoption of this principle, they are entirely different. Rattan's hard-chamber, filled, is of itself a heavy load.

It is trouble and expensive to construct.

It is to be regretted that the air which it forces into the bottom and draws away from the top of the ear.

We are a go-ahead people.—Hamilton
Spectator.

FREEMASoNERY DENOUNCED IN FRANCE.

The recent arrival of the Cambria at N.

York, from Liverpool, brings us the startling intelligence from France. It appears that the "nephew of his uncle," acting upon the instructions of the Pope, has been sent to Paris to suppress Freemasonry in France.

Several Masonic lodges have already been closed, and the Grand Master of the Grand

Orient of France, visiting to witness the trials of the members of the order.
